EXHIBITION OF ART IS APPROVED

Chamber of Commerce Directors Adopt Ben Short's Suggestion

SEEK COOPERATION

Plan to Awaken Artistic Spirit Meets With General Favor

The greatest thing that was done at the meeting and luncheon of the chamber of commerce directors yesterday was the reaching a decision to hold an art exhibit in this city in the auditorium of the chamber of commerce. This exhibit will be held with the assistance of the Sculptors' Guild of Southern California, which is an association of sculptors who have won world fame with their works. Through the co-operation of the organization with the chamber of commerce a collection of art works and statuary will be available to the people of Glendale that is valued at more than $500,000.

The proposal for the chamber to foster the art exhibit was made to the directors by Ben Short of the Academy of Music of this city, who said that this exhibit would serve to awaken the artistic spirit of the people of Glendale. He said that there are artists in Glendale who are winning fame in other sections of the city but are practically unknown here at home. He told of one water color painter whose recent exhibition of his work in San Francisco placed him before the eyes of the artistic world. This artist is planning to take some of his works east for an exhibition in New York city.

President Val Hollister of the chamber of commerce, at the conclusion of Mr. Short's talk, announced himself as favoring the plan to hold an exhibit here. Mayor Robinson said that he favored the plan to hold such an exhibit. The fact that a musical program is being planned sa a part of the four-day exhibit particularly appealed to him. He said that he thought Brahms Van Den - Berg and Elsa Bright, two Glendale pianists, are the greatest in the world and that the city should back them in every way possible by the giving of exhibits and musicales that would tend to increase the musical and artistic spirit of the people. Mayor Robinson said that in the old world music with religion is the foundation of their civilization.

Richardson D. White, superintendent of the Glendale grammar schools, said that he favored the plan and would appreciate it as one of the greatest helps to the children of his schools that has ever been offered them in the study of art and said that he would do his part to assist in making the plan a reality.

It was decided that the exhibit should be given in the auditorium of the chamber of commerce and then came the discussion of financing the proposition. It was first suggested that a nominal admission fee be charged to defray the expense of bringing the exhibit to Glendale. Director Kimlin said he is not in favor of charging a nominal admission fee because to his mind a small admission would cheapen the exhibit. He said he rather favored the making of the exhibit free and having it financed through the co-operation of a committee.

Mr. Short was finally appointed chairman of a committee with permission to choose his co-workers which will have charge of the work of arranging and bringing to this city the art exhibit. They will also arrange the musical program for each day and will decide how the project is to be financed.

EXPERT LISTER IN GLENDALE

That will be the chief topic of discussion but the board will also consider matters in connection with the convention to be held in San Francisco May 31 to June 3.

City of Achievement and Journey Thereto Told by Jas. A. Foley

A can set out on a journey to the "City of Achievement" with health, courage, determination and purpose. He falls in with a wayfarer who directs him, then with another wayfarer who directs him—differently. How he reached the City of Achievement is told by James W. Foley tonight in "The Listening Post" and it would be well for you to read it, to get from it an inspiration that will stand you in good stead.

An instance of carelessness, crime, brutality and murder witnessed by Henry James is related by him in his column of comment on the day's news on the editorial page tonight. It is about the carelessness of an automobile driver who struck down a man at a street intersection and kept on his way without stopping to render aid. Other topics that Mr. James discusses will be found James discusses will be found John Pilgrim and Della Stewart each have their feature stories. There is the usual column and a half of able editorials, poetry, paragraphs and eastern point of view.

JINX QUITS AUTO PARK WHEN HELP ARRIVES

Father of 7 Weeps When Provisions Are Delivered by The Press

As his eyes filled with tears yesterday the father of the family of seven, living in the auto camp ground on San Fernando road attempted to thank a committee and representative of the Glendale Daily Press when they delivered a large box of groceries, a box of clothing and some money to tide them over the hard times, The father has been unable to work for several weeks because of a broken foot. The only support of the family is the money earned by the mother who works at the basket factory.

When the father of the family was told that the groceries, clothing and money were for him and his family, he said: "Oh, I don't know how I can ever thank you and the kind people who made these donations. I am not a beggar and I do want to pay you all back some time. We are having a hard time and these two boxes and money will do a lot toward putting us on our feet. As soon as my foot is all right I am going to work and will try and pay back these kindnesses to me and my family."

Clothing has also been provided for the children of the family where it was stated that the children were forced to stay out of school because they did not have sufficient clothing. This clothing was secured by L. T. Rowley, truant officer for the city. Money collected among the employees of the Glendale Daily Press was used to assist in this work.

BRITISHERS QUIT WORK

LONDON, March 29.—Thousands of shipbuilding workers quit today, according to a statement from the ministry of labor. In all disputes in the engineering and allied trades will have added 1,200,000 men to England's army of unemployed, bringing its total to nearly 2,500,000.

GEORGE IS NOW READY TO RESIGN

Unless He Receives Vote of Confidence He Will Quit

BIG ISSUES OUTLINED

Majority of 300 in House of Commons Is His Demand

LONDON, March 29.—Premier Lloyd George has his resignation ready for next Monday.

Unless the house gives him a majority of 300 or more when he asks a vote of confidence on the government's Genoa policy, his friends say he will unquestionably quit.

A small majority of which Lloyd George is almost certain will not satisfy the premier.

Threats of crisis in two other big issues with which Lloyd George is faced may influence the house against him. These are:

1—Labor may line up against Lloyd George to prevent him leaving the country while the industrial crisis caused by the shipbuilding and engineer strikes is on.

2—The Irish situation is considered full of menace and the outcome of the proposed conference between north and south leaders uncertain.

Failure here would antagonize a considerable number of coalition liberals.

The Genoa economic conference, Lloyd George's own idea, may prove the Frankenstein instrument to bring about his downfall. The resolution concerning Genoa on which the vote will be taken includes the terms laid down at Cannes; that is, that Russia recognize her debts and give guarantees before she can be recognized. But Lloyd George's staunchest supporters in the coalition, including Winston Churchill, have split with the premier over "shaking hands with Russia."

Sixty unionist "die hards" under Sir George Younger will vote against the premier and with them will be a number of coalition unionists who will not agree to meeting the bolsheviki under any conditions.

Coalition whips are making every effort to have the majority in the house around 400.

Lloyd George is holding apart from the Irish conference today.

Austen Chamberlain announced in the house of commons today that Lloyd George at Monday's session would move the following resolution:

"That this house approves the resolutions of the supreme council conference at Cannes as a basis for the economic conference of Genoa and will support the government's efforts to effect them."

A vote of confidence will be taken on this resolution.

IRISH CONFERENCE OPENS

LONDON, March 29.—The Irish conference, attended by Sir James Craig, Lord Londonderry, Michael Collins and Arthur Griffith, began today at the colonial office at 11:30 a. m. Winston Churchill presided. Lloyd George was not present.

IRISH WAR ON

BELFAST, March 29.—Irish border war broke out today when a large force of Sinn Feiners entered Belco, county Fermanagh, and stormed the police barracks, according to reports reaching here.

Ulster constables holding the barracks were made prisoners and 15 of them were taken back to the Free State side of the line.

TASTE IN WATER IS EXPLAINED

The distinct taste of the city water is attributed by Superintendent of Plant and Production Dietrich to the cleaning of the reservoir and channels conveying the water from the mountains. During the cleaning, the city wells have been pumped into the mains, after long disuse. On one day water from one of them had been run into the canyon, but apparently proved insufficient. City Manager Reeves today suggested opening the fire hydrants and eliminating the contaminated flow.

DR. VON KLEINSMID TO MAKE ADDRESS

Dr. R. B. von KleinSmid, president of the University of Southern California has consented to be the orator at the high school commencement, June 22, it was announced today by the high school trustees. The class was overjoyed.

STRIKE IS CERTAIN

CHICAGO, March 29.—Doubts that the coal miners' strike called for April 1 would be averted were expressed here today as mine operators and union officials went into conference.

GIGGLING GAY THING

COLUMBUS, O., March 29.—Mayor Thomas will preside at a banquet in honor of the 106th birthday anniversary of "Tillie," an elephant.

PRETTY GIRL WOULD ANNUL MARRIAGE TO HUSBAND SHE STILL LOVES

Peggy Unertl and mother. NTL.

Despite the fact that she "still loves" her husband of three weeks, pretty Peggy Unertl is making an effort to have her marriage to Jack Montgomery annulled. "Do I look like a girl who would drag a man to the altar to get him to marry me?" she queries. Montgomery worked fast—he wooed and won her in three weeks and then left her after a three weeks' honeymoon. She has returned to her parents, Dr. and Mrs. John T. Unertl, wealthy Milwaukeeans.

Register NOW

Register today. And vote May 2. Vote for or against the high school bond issue, $600,000. But vote.

A big vote at a city bond election is a bid for consideration as an exception to the average municipality. It means that the citizens are alive to their obligations and responsibilities.

A community which falls into the pernicious habit of negative voting is flying the flag of decadence in public spirit.

When the voters in a community refrain from registering and voting popular approval at a bond election and overwhelm the polls when they wish to register disapproval of an issue, they upset the tradition of popular vote. They fall into the habit of never voting for a measure but only against a proposition. Thus a man or a measure does not get the full status of the public opinion. And outside investors are unable to find out what the community thinks.

If you are in favor of the high school bonds, turn out, register and vote for them. If you are against them, vote accordingly. But vote. There have been cities where bond issues of several hundred thousands have been voted with a scant hundred ballots. To the investor the returns read that the people of such a community do not care what debt they place upon the city finances, since the general thought is to leave the district anyway as soon as opportunity offers.

If you are here in Glendale for good, and for the good of the community, not for your own good as long as it is good to you, vote at the coming bond issue. You cannot do it unless you register now, or on the last day, April 1.

If you favor the measure for relieving the high school situation you must know there is opposition. A small opposition, voting, may defeat popular approval —which forgets to register and so cannot vote on May 2.

Hold a registration reception. Get your friends together for the evening. Then introduce as the guest of the evening and chief entertainer your friend, the deputy registrar.

REGISTER TODAY

Registration for the high school bond election May 2 must be made by Saturday, April 1. If you do not register by Saturday you cannot vote for or against the $600,000 issue for the new high school for Glendale.

ROMMEL CO. GETS SCHOOL CONTRACT

Bid of $92,500 With Reductions Is Low for Intermediate Unit

OTHER BIDDERS

Houses on Premises Are Disposed of to the Purchasers

The meeting of the Board of Education Tuesday night was devoted chiefly to the consideration of the new bids for the Park avenue intermediate school.

The bids called for a variety of alternatives and as there were many bidders the task of reviewing them was not small. The general contract was let to Mr. Rommel of the Rommel Construction Co., this city, on the basis of omitting the auditorium and with several alternatives. His bid was $92,500, with a deduction of $20,000 for omitting the auditorium. Another deduction of $4500 was made for omitting wooden lockers because steel lockers can be installed for $2200.

The board also has the alternative of accepting pine, birch or maple flooring. Birch flooring would add $2900 to the cost and Maple $3250. Another alternative calls for a boiler room in case the board decides to have steam heat. This would add $600 to the cost.

The plumbing contract was let to F. J. Donnelly of Los Angeles for $5096 with a deduction of $332 for the omission of the plumbing allowed for the auditorium. Another alternative provided for a pump to cost $73 in case steam heating is adopted.

The electric clock system bid of E. H. Abbott of the Standard Time company for $1290 (with the omission of the auditorium connections) was accepted.

The consideration of bids for electric wiring and fixtures and for a heating system, went over until the next meeting.

Bids for the houses on school campuses were next considered and the two-story frame residence on the property purchased from Mr. and Mrs. Turck was sold to Peter Ferry for $1100 and $75 for the outbuildings, Mr. Ferry to clear the ground.

The bid of H. L. Hock for the four or five-room California house at 409 Milford street was accepted, for $270 for the house and $20 for a chicken house.

Superintendent White was instructed to place insurance on the new Acacia avenue school building and to order water and gas installations at the new Grand View school.

The employment of an additional carpenter to make school repairs was also authorized.

An agreement was signed with David B. Edwards, from whom the board has purchased 2.4 acres to be added to the campus of the Acacia avenue school for $11,500 that he is to have possession until next August and then is to vacate the ground, removing the house and fencing.

RATES ARE REDUCED.

WASHINGTON, March 29.—A reduction of class and commodity rates from Chicago and related points to South Atlantic and gulf ports on goods destined to the Pacific coast via steamship lines was ordered today by the interstate commerce commission. The commission suspended a recent order which would increase the rates and found the proportional rates justified.

From San Francisco the marshal will go directly to New York. His visit to Los Angeles has been eliminated.

MUSIC MEMORY OF CHILDREN RANKS VERY HIGH

Hi Students Register 55, Reaching 100 Percent; Committee Is Puzzled

The judging committee in the music memory contest, of which Mrs. H. E. Bartlett is chairman, has not had an easy task because children who competed revealed an acquaintance with the 12 selections chosen for the final concert Saturday morning that they had not expected.

Their returns show that out of the 69 who competed from the high school, 55 qualified at 100 per cent by identifying all of the compositions and correctly spelling and naming the composers. Six others ranked from 92 to 98 per cent.

The committee on prizes, of which Postmaster D. Ripley Jackson is the chairman, now has to solve the problem of rewarding these young people. At the present date the cash prizes already donated total $57.50, with other prizes in the way of valuable scholarships.

Several music lovers and professional musicians of the city who have taken great interest in the contest have volunteered subscriptions to increase the prize list, and it is expected that others will follow their example. Even then there will hardly be cash enough to give each winner a prize and the problem will probably be solved by a drawing.

Mrs. Dora Gibson, who had charge of the contest, says her high school students are all good sports and say they have been repaid by the knowledge gained of these splendid compositions which they will never forget.

Following is a list of the high school students rated perfect:

Selma Carver, Audrey Haynes, Doris Davis, May Jacobson, Beryl Goodale, Ruth Gotow, Muriel Hiveley, Elsie Cowan, Lois Campbell, Frances Wyman, Mildred Moody, Ruth Dana, Lois Olmstead, Alice Carpenter, Edith May Nelson, Ethel Burke, Lucille Harris, Margery Laughray, Mary Sherrick, Elsie Mae Forsyth, Julia Goetz, Alice Huston, Florence Rattray, Clara Clark, Winifred Parker, Lucile Allen, Leonora Rose, Margaret West, Martha Jennings, Mildred Fischer, Shirley Fawkes, Gertrude Heideman, Beulah Schulte, Dorothy Cotton, Genevieve Hook, Emma Lucas, Edith Bayley, Esther Phillippi, Lois Kimball, Julia Robinson, Lois Sanders, Carmen Kinzy, Dorothy Buss, Virginia Harsh, Ruth Geis, Fredericka Brown, Beryl Hatch, Genevieve Mulligan, Florence Bruce, Carolyn Gray, Lucile Beach, Bettie Mabry, Alberta Bowling, Amy Bainbridge.

The following ranked 98 per cent: Margery Yarick, Freda Potts, Lulu Drake and Adelaide Gibson.

Believing that grammar and intermediate school children should not be called upon to compete on exactly the same basis as the older students, all cards on which ten compositions were correctly identified and spelled were marked 100 per cent. Many of these boys and girls turned in cards that were perfect for the whole list, and the response was most gratifying to the school officials, the judges and all the committees that have been instrumental in arranging the contest. Following is the list of pupils in the grade schools who were rated perfect:

Cornelia Hollingsworth, Waldo M. Winger, Jr., George Grey, Ruth Adell Houk, Helen Louise Houk, Trusten P. Jennings, Marguerite Keith Chappell, Celia Logan, Miriam Bainbridge, Cerna Alice Col-

G. A. R. HALL TO BE IMPROVED UPON

That the community is in hearty sympathy with the effort of the N. P. Banks post and corps to improve G. A. R. hall and make it adequate to the needs of the affiliated organizations is shown by the voluntary contributions to the fund that are coming in.

As announced by the Glendale Press some time ago, Mr. Davis of the Grand View Cemetery association has tendered $25, and today Dr. Henry R. Harrower has made a spontaneous contribution of $10. Who will be next to show appreciation of the veterans of '61?

Postmaster Jackson Notified Office Will Be at Broadway-Orange

BE IN NEW BUILDING

To Occupy Lot Owned by Grocery Company West of Store

Glendale's new postoffice will be located on the north side of Broadway between Orange street and Central avenue, according to a telegram received yesterday by Capt. D. Ripley Jackson, postmaster of Glendale. The telegram further stated that a building will be erected specially for this purpose by the Ralphs Grocery company, on the vacant lot owned by this company, just west of the company's present store and office building. The new building will extend from the present structure on the east to the alley on the west, and will continue a sufficient distance back from the street to give the postoffice 5,000 square feet of floor space, which it is believed will take care of the needs of the local office for some time to come.

So far as can be learned this building will be a one-story structure with provision made for the second story, should it be deemed wise to erect it at a later date. It will conform in every way to and will be of the high class character of the present Ralphs building. The present plans call for a building that will leave sufficient platform room at the rear of the building so that all of the trucking work may be done from the rear of the building, via. the alley. It is understood that the architect has already started on plans for this building and that just as soon as he has finished his work, actual construction of the new office home will be started, which will probably be within a few days. After being once started this structure will be rushed to completion in the shortest possible length of time, probably within 60 days. The idea in connection with this new building is to make it one of the finest "small city" postoffice structures in California, so that the very finest of service may be given to the patrons of the Glendale office. It is understood that the government has taken a long lease on the building to be constructed.

The actual selection of a site for the new postoffice settles a dispute that has been going on among local residents for several weeks. Boosters of the Glendale avenue district believed the office should be erected over there; those in the territory between Brand and Glendale avenue believed it should be located along that stretch, while the west side folks naturally thought the office should remain on the west side of town. The selection was made by the government after it had thoroughly considered every angle of the matter.

The wonderful growth of the Glendale postoffice makes the proposed move into new quarters absolutely necessary. Up to a short time ago the local office was operated as a branch of the Los Angeles office and at that time seven clerks were employed here Since becoming an independent office the number of clerks has been increased to 23, which shows that the business of the local office has done some growing since Glendale cut loose from the Los Angeles office. This increase in the number of clerks employed is responsible for the more efficient service that has been received by the patrons of the local office. Another feature that shows the growth of the Glendale office is the fact that in January, 1921, the business of the office amounted to $5,130.77, while in January, 1922, it ran up to a total of $13,613.58. During one day last week 53,000 pieces of first-class mail was sent out from the local office, this being exclusive of the second, third and fourth class mail.

Glendale people are receiving excellent mail service at this time. There are seven incoming and seven outgoing mails daily, of these three go to and come from the north, and four are general, coming from the east, south, etc.

DAMAGED

CHINA EXPERT IS SPEAKER AT THE TUESDAY CLUB

Parmalee-Dohrmann Representative Discourses Upon Various Wares

A representative of Parmalee-Dohrmann company, Mr. H. B. Tuttle, gave the talk of the afternoon at the meeting of the Tuesday Afternoon club this week, a talk on china, which was illustrated by an exhibit of some beautiful specimens of both imported and American wares.

He greatly astonished his hearers by telling them that America has the largest china factory in the world, established in 1874 by Homer Laughlin and brother in East Liverpool, Ohio. America also makes the most durable china in the world. A third surprise was the statement that David Haviland, founder of the Haviland & Company factory at Limoges, France, was a New York importer who established it to meet the demands of his American trade. His two sons, David and Theodore inherited the business, and not being able to agree, Theodore withdrew and established a new factory which makes practically the same kind of wares as the parent plant. They are loyal Americans in sympathy, and talk of returning to this country.

Of the beautiful things exhibited the object of greatest interest was a plate from the Walter Lenox factory at Trenton, New Jersey, which turned out the first service china made in America which was ever used in the White House. The plate has a beautiful cobalt blue border with a gold decoration in stars and stripes, the central decoration being the president's coat of arms.

As the story ran, when President Roosevelt was in the White House congress authorized the purchase of a new china service, and with characteristic patriotism the president insisted it should come from America. investigation showed that nothing fit for the official mansion was being made in this country and he was compelled to relunctantly abandon his quest. He found very beautiful wares at the Lenox factory but Mr. Lenox was not making services wares. It humiliated Walter Lenox as it did Theodore Roosevelt to think that such an order must go out of the country and he vowed he would not be found without resources another time.

He had opportunity when congress instructed President Woodrow Wilson to order for the White House a service to cost not over $18,000. Knowing that all the great factories of the world would compete, Mr. Lenox arranged for an exhibit in Washington of the choicest wares he had turned out, including service wares, in the expectation that Mrs. Wilson would visit the exhibit. She did so, fell in love with it and would hear of nothing else for the official mansion. The lecturer explained that hereafter it is probable that nothing but American china will be found on the president's table.

The Parmalee-Dohrmann Company had a long siege before they persuaded the Lenox factory to loan them a sample of the White House set, and they declare the loan will be permanent, that they will never relinquish the sample.

He began his lecture with a history of pottery which the Chinese claim to have made as long ago as 7000 B. C. Their actual records of its manufacture go back to 2698 B. C., and it was an industry in which the Chinese emperors took great interest and pride.

No translucent pottery was made in England until after the discovery of America, when English sea captains began bringing from the Orient translucent blue china bowls from China and one sacred vase observed in a temple was craftily stolen by one of these captains who joggled it enough to make it fall and smash, gathering up the fragments which he put in his pocket unobserved. These he brought back to England to be studied for composition and pattern by the potters there. in due time the secret was discovered and advanced by the discovery of other ingredients which could be incorporated—bone, feldspar, silicia, flint—which made the English china harder and more durable than any other in the world.

The manner in which the Wedgewood ware was developed by Joshua Wedgewood, called the father of the porcelain art, was an interesting story of a disabled boy of artistic temperament who had time to experiment, and evolve the Jasper ware which made the name "Wedgewood" famous. A typical example of that was shown, also of the Minton, Doulton and Coalport wares. Originally all these factories had their secret processes which were handed down from father to son, but now, all have practically the same formulas.

Most of the early patterns were obtained from the Orient, and that is still the great source of decoration, the old patterns being revived after a generation of disuse.

He described the process by which china is made from the blending of the various materials with the clay to the shaping on the potter's wheel, the drying, the first firing, the glazing, the decoration and final firing.

He urged the ladies to visit the factory at Burbank which he pronounced one of the most modern. ts owners having come from East Liverpool, Ohio, the great china factory district of this country. It is now just taking out its third kiln of ware.

In describing the durable ware developed in this country, the lecturer told how in this as in other cases necessity was the mother of the inventoin of a china that would stand the wear and tear of hard use, particularly in hotels. It was turned out in a factory started in 1886 at Onondaga, New York, and is known as the Syracuse china. "It is so strong that you have to get real angry to break it," Mr. Tuttle declared. In this respect the manufacture in America has been carried a step further than in any other country. The name "china" grew out of the fact that the first examples were imported from China.

BROTHERHOOD OF METHODISTS MEET

There will be a Men's Brotherhood banquet at the Pacific Avenue Methodist church Thursday night at 6:30. An interesting program is being arranged, which will include vocal solos by Mrs. R. D. Crumpton, piano selections by G. S. Hollingstead, both of whom are very fine.

The speaker of the evening will be C. A. Brownell of Detroit, Mich., who is wintering here, stopping, with his daughter, at 615 South Adams street. Mr. Brownell is vice president of the Wildman Rubber company at Bay City, Mich., and for eleven years directed the advertising and publicity of the Ford Motor company. He is a speaker of note, having addressed various chambers of commerce and Rotary clubs throughout country. His subject will be "The New Dispensation." The meeting is for men only. Come and bring a friend.

ST. QUENTIN PEN HAS PLAYING TEAM

SAN FRANCISCO, March 28.—The only baseball league in the world in which there are no holdouts—and no chance for holdouts—has opened at St. Quentin penitentiary.

The San Quentin Prison league is remarkable for several reasons. In the first place, managers have a very soft time signing up their talent. The league also opens the season, as far as the U. S. A. is concerned. Also, Judge Landis won't have any trouble in preventing the players in barnstorming after the season is over.

Oh, yes, it's the only league in the world where the small boy who gets the ball knocked over the right field wall doesn't get into the grounds free.

There are four teams, most of the players hailing from the native villages the teams are named after: The Seals, the Oaks, the Cubs and the Tigers.

FAMOUS MITCHELL HOME SCENE OF GAY PARTY

A very charmingly appointed announcement party was given Tuesday evening by the Misses Lorraine and Barbara Mitchell, 2001 Kenneth road, in honor of Miss Alice Frank and Harry A. James, whose marriage will take place April 18 at the First Presbyterian church.

The spacious rooms were artistically decorated in pink sweet peas and maiden hair fern. A pleasant evening was devoted to the playing of "500," first prize for ladies going to Mrs. John Allen Legge and first gentleman's prize to Dr. John Anderson. Miss Frank was awarded a special prize of a handsome box of stationery. During the course of the evening Warner Van Valkenberg, composer of the Rotary song to be sung at the Rotary convention, played several of his own compositions on the piano. Mr. James gave several very clever monologues and stories, which were greatly enjoyed, and Mrs. John Allen Legge played a beautiful piano number.

After this delightful program, the small card tables were set for the serving of refreshments, which consisted of white brick ice cream with a pink frozen heart in the center, and tiny heart cakes with the date, April 18 on the top. Pink favor baskets marked each place and on the handle were two hearts, inside of which was written the name "Alice H. Frank—Harry A. James—April 18."

Miss Frank is the daughter of Mrs. H. F. Frank of 1008 East Wilson avenue and they have made Glendale their home for the past 15 years. Miss Frank has a host of friends here.

JOIN T. D. & L. BOOSTER CLUB

The people of Glendale and vicinity sat up and took notice yesterday when the T. D. and L. Theatre announced its gigantic $3000 prize booster club. Just think of it folks—over three thousand dollars in rich awards are to be distributed absolutely free to club members.

This great reward distribution officially opens next Saturday, April 1, and will close May 20, 1922. It costs absolutely nothing to join the Booster Club, and every club member will be rewarded. All that is necessary to join the club is to send in your name and address to the club manager of the T. D. and L. theatre, get some tickets and call on a few of your friends.

The club member who receives the highest number of credits during the competition will have his or her choice between a brand new $1,275 Studebacker touring car or one thousand dollars in cash. Who would care for better pay than that for a little of one's spare time during the next seven weeks. There will be no losers. Everybody wins. If you fail to win one of the regular prizes you will be paid a cash commission of ten per cent on the gross collections turned in by you.

An early start is half of the battle. The club will officially open next Saturday, but in order to get an early start you should send in your name or the name of a friend at once, get some tickets and start lining up your friends immediately.

TRUE TO LECTURE AT U. OF CALIF.

For those who wish to gain a broad view of modern child welfare, the courses to be given by Herbert True, this summer, at the University of California Summer Session in Los Angeles will prove of vital interest. His lectures are not intended to train experts, nor to take the place of the regular course in public health nursing, but are for the benefit of health visitors, social service workers, and others who care to study child hygiene in its relation to public health.

The development of child welfare work in this country, the modern standards, with the organization of health centers and appointment of officers, will be carefully studied.

Mr. True is also to give a course entitled School Hygiene, in the development of which he will consider the public health aspects of school hygiene, the question of remediable defects of school children, the detection and control of communicable diseases in the schools, and the cooperative possibilities between health development departments, home economies, physical education, and science. Actual demonstrations with school children are to be held.

As director of school health in Los Angeles, Mr. True has had actual experience in all phases of the work.

PENNIES COUNT IN MUSIC EDUCATION AT PARK AVENUE

Upon the sale of a Victrola to the West Park avenue school, a large bag of pennies was given as payment. The children of the school had saved the pennies, proving that every child had put forth every effort in obtaining musical education.

They were more than encouraged in their efforts by M. Lightner, sales manager for the Glendale Music company, who naturally had a vision of having them wisely invest their savings in one necessity that would advance their musical education by bringing before them the works of the world's greatest artists.

BURBANK LIGHTING ON LAUREL AVE. IS SECURED

At its meeting last night the city council voted to purchase the portion of the Burbank lighting system known as the "Laurel avenue district," for the sum of $2,421.98. This district is located on the section annexed to Glendale at a recent election, but has been retained by Burbank up to this time. It is claimed by Manager Diederich of the public service department that this plant is being taken over at practically one-half its actual value at this time.

Truths in Epigram

Let no things, because they are common, enjoy for that the less share of our consideration. — Pliny the Elder (23-79 A. D.).

Truly there is a tide in the affairs of men; but there is no gulf-stream setting forever in one direction.—Lowell (1819-1891).

HAMPERING JUSTICE

It was in 1918 that a Seattle man was indicted for grand larceny. It was in March, 1922, that he was sentenced to fifteen years in the penitentiary. The case had been permitted to run through three administrations of the district attorney's office. The delay was occasioned in part by appeals. The defendant had finally reached the supreme court.

Months age a confidence man named Hutchinson, commonly known as "Big Hutch," was convicted in this county of swindling one man out of more than fifty thousand dollars. He had escaped to New York, was caught there, allowed to escape, and caught again. The district attorney went to New York to attend to extradition, and succeeded in getting his man only after a desperate fight with rogue lawyers.

Hutchinson when convicted appealed to the appellate court, which sustained the court below. He now appeals to the supreme court, meaning that for a long time yet he will be loose on bail plying his vocation.

It is interesting to read the warning sent by a crook in Detroit to his pal in the east, telling him to stay where he was. "Lay off Detroit" he advised. "Its copper. One job with a gun. I'm pinched last night. This is today and I'm through; no bail, trial over, and me doing my hitch already."

One is inclined to think that the wave of crime found a solid barrier when it tried to inundate Detroit.

TROUBLE IN IRELAND

The world had hoped that under the new understanding with Great Britain, Ireland was to have peace. The friends of Ireland in this country had counseled acceptance of the proffered terms. Even some of the professional haters of England believed that a solution of the difficulty had been found.

Disappointment has been keen. People at a distance naturally are slow to pass upon a national crisis arising from circumstances they understand but imperfectly, and yet it is impossible for them to think that marauding bands that slay men in their beds, represent high principle. Women and children also have been victims of the assassins.

Doubtless all this puts everybody concerned into a serious and delicate position. Interference of troops from outside of Ireland might be resented by both sides. In Ireland itself there is no sign of any moral or physical force equal to the task of restoring order.

Throughout the world there is a desire for peace, not wholly a selfish desire, but that the blessing of peace shall rest on all human beings. Thus peoples engaged in the promotion of international friendship and understanding, would be glad to see Ireland endorsing the same policy and sharing in its benefits.

MIXED JURIES

Perhaps it is unfair to call attention to the fact that the services of mixed juries have, in some notable instances, been far from satisfactory. If it is unfair, it is so because in other instances not widely recorded, the service has been all that could be desired. In any case, the mixed jury is something of a problem quite apart from consideration of the quality of its verdicts, or the probabliity of no verdict.

In a New Jersey court where the jury was equally divided as to sex, there was disagreement, not, however, wholly on sex lines. When the twelve found that they could not frame a verdict, they already had been locked up. They faced a long night in which there was nothing particular to do. No facilities for sleep, or even for segregation, had been provided. They passed the hours in playing cards. Meanwhile both men and women indulged in naps on the cushioned benches. Some scandal, for which there appears no legitimate basis, was aroused at revelation of these circumstances.

The woman's party is demanding perfect equality. What it means by this seems to be that there must be no distinction between the treatment accorded one sex and that accorded the other. The status of sex is to be lost sight of in the status of citizenship. There is a sentimental barrier to this course. Probably the women themselves would be the first to resent their treatment, could their theory be put into effect. If it were to cause them gains, it must result also in losses.

When men and women serve together on a jury, discontinuance of the deference ordinarily displayed towards the women, would be objectionable to both, in all probability. Special provision for separating the sexes where a night or nights must be spent as prisoners of the court, could not be construed otherwise than as an expression of respect.

THE TRUCULENT MINORITY

Among republican senators, four voted against ratification of the four-power treaty. Particular interest in this minority is felt in this state, since one of the quartette is Johnson of California. These men favored a policy of national isolation. What they accomplished seems likely to be individual isolation, a status rarely sought by the politician.

Senator France is the colorless one of the group. His standing among his colleagues never has been high. Since his visit to Russia, and his abject surrender to bolshevist influence, he has had no standing in the senate or out. La Follette does not need to be explained. The fiery advocate of the German cause in the war, he earned the reputation then of being erratic, his Americanism minus. Borah also is understood fairly well by the people of the country. His facility for getting on the wrong side seldom has been equaled. The noise he makes in defense of the indefensible has established a precedent.

Senator Johnson writes to tell how the ratification of the treaty was an error, a calamity, the loss of prestige, and the slaughter of hope. Evidently he has the approval of Hearst, who uses a number of yellow papers to give publicity to the screed. It may be said in fairness that the plea in justification of the attitude of Johnson and the three others, lacks in merit; lacks any quality that carries conviction.

He says: "The people have been led to believe this treaty means disarmament." They have. They do so believe.

Then he adds, "when it has nothing to do with disarmament." Here he will not find himself sustained. A treaty that specifically provides for cutting down armament, instituting a vacation in naval construction, and scrapping battleships; that fixes and inaugurates the ratio of sea power as among the signatories, not only has something to do with disarmament, but is disarmament.

Whatever explanation of his conduct the gentleman may make to his constituents will have to be different. They hold decided opinions concerning the treaty, and Senator Johnson chose to ignore them. The reasons, as given, may not satisfy fully. For instance the assumption that Harding was elected as a protest against the League of Nations is regarded by many as baseless. Some wise and unsentimental students of party history contend that the protest then registered was against high taxation. and hold that the republicans will be swept from office on the same current of opinion that swept them in.

However, this wanders from mere consideration of the attitude of four republican senators, who jumped in the wrong direction, and do not appear to have landed unscathed.

RUFFIANS IN SHEETS

"Hooded men, wearing black robes marked with yellow numbers" have been guilty at Bakersfield of what appears to have been a wanton, brutal and cowardly crime. At this writing one arrest has been made. In the material seized by officers was found a can of tar and a brush. The victim of the attack reports that his assailants robbed him of $350.

The matter is worth mentioning because it is singularly significant. It is an expression of a spirit that, judged by frequent reports, is widespread. The idea seems to be that if a mob will array itself in grotesque uniform, it may venture upon any sort of outrage, excusing its conduct on the plea that it really intends to defend society against evil-doers, and greatly boost the moral average.

It is remotely possible that there is an organization controlled by some thought of executing the law upon offenders whom the courts have failed to reach. Even for such as these reformers there could be no excuse pleaded. Aside from the crimes committed by them on the pretense of high and holy motive, there is to be considered the malign influence they exert. The original besheeted rabble has imitators. The first wear white sheets, and the imitators are content with garb of any color that will conceal identity and ward off punishment for their deeds.

Strip off all the sheets, the white, the black and the variagated, and under each, the chances of finding a rogue will be excellent.

STETS VERNEINT

By DR. FRANK CRANE

One of the characteristics of Goethe's Mephistopheles was that he denied everything—Stets verneint.

DR. FRANK CRANE

To the mind of the middle ages, which placed emphasis upon intellectual obedience to authority and identified mental docility with piety, the Devil was supposed to be an unbridled intellect. Instead of accepting, he reasoned, and hence he doubted.

Modern science has disturbed many of the notions of the theologians.

But it does not stop there.

Now the spirit of science is turning upon itself and doubting its own postulates.

Einstein is playing hob with the axioms.

The creeds of science are being threatened as much as the creeds of religion.

We can confidently look forward, if we can believe Einstein—at least as interpreted by M. Charles Nordmann, astronomer to the Observatory of Paris—to the time when self-evident truths shall no more be self-evident.

A bare list of some of the theories put forward in Nordmann's recent book, "Einstein et l'Univers," will give us some idea as to the realm of doubt into which we are sailing.

First of all, space and time do not exist of themselves.

Time is the fourth dimension of objects; that is to say, we must not only know how long and wide and broad anything is, but we must know what time it is.

If you know what this means you are to be congratulated.

The mass of an object is not constant, as Newton affirmed, but varies with the speed at which the object is moving. As for instance, if you want to know how much a horse weighs you have to first find out how fast he is going, so to speak. The mass of an object is also identical with the inertia, if you know what we mean.

Light is not the airy nothing we have supposed, but it has mass and can be weighed; that is, some light is heavier than others.

The universe is curved. For this reason it is limitless. Yet although it is limitless it is not necessarily infinite. So there you are.

Mr. Nordmann believes the universe is probably finite; that is, that it has limits. But it is so immense, even if limited to the Milky Way, that he concludes that it takes light travelling 186,300 miles a second at least nine hundred million years to go round it.

It has not seemed to us so long as this, but still you never can tell.

Even Old Euclid fares as badly as Newton at the hands of these new doubters. For the shortest distance between two points is not a straight line but a curve.

It is also not possible to draw two straight lines in the same plane which shall be parallel; that is, which shall never meet. As the straightness of lines depends on visuality, and the path of light is never in a straight line, so-called parallel straight lines will always meet if prolonged far enough.

So cheer up! No matter how certain anything is, perhaps it may not be true.

AT THE LISTENING POST

A man set out on a journey.
To the City of Achievement.
He had been studying the maps.
And planning the trip for himself.
And he felt certain he knew the road with all its turnings and detours.

* * *

He was well fitted out for the journey.
He had health and strength and courage and determination and purpose.
All of which are necessary things to have if you are to make the journey safely.
And he set out with confidence that he would reach the city.

* * *

Something inside of him kept saying: "Go straight ahead!"
The road stretched away before him.
And he set his feet in it.
Resolved to go straight ahead.
For he had read that a straight line was the shortest distance between any two points.

* * *

But before he had gone a very great distance he fell in with a Wayfarer.
Who was sitting by the side of the road.
Not doing much of anything.
And the traveler on the way to Achievement stopped to say a friendly word.

* * *

"Where are you going?" asked the Wayfarer.
"I am on the way to Achievement," returned the Traveler.
"Then you want to take the first road that leads off to the right," said the Wayfarer.
"Why?" asked the Traveler.

* * *

"Because it is the surer road," said the Wayfarer.
"Who are you that you should know this?" asked the Traveler.
"I am a Chronic Adviser," replied the Wayfarer. "I know how to do everything. I give advice on every possible subject."

* * *

So they parted and the Traveler took the turn to the right at the first fork of the roads.
And before he had gone far he met another Wayfarer.
Sitting by the side of the road.
And the traveler stopped again.

* * *

"Where are you going?" said the second Wayfarer.
"I am on the way to Achievement," replied the Traveler.
"You will never reach it by this road," said the Wayfarer.
"You want to go back and take the highway and then the first road that leads to the left."
"Who are you?" asked the Traveler.

* * *

"I am a Critic," said the Wayfarer. "I know what is wrong with everything."
"Have you ever been to Achievement?" asked the Traveler.
"No," said the Critic. "I have never been Anyplace, but I know how to get Anywhere."

* * *

So the Traveler turned back.
All the time hearing a voice within him saying: "Why don't you go straight ahead as I told you before?"
And when he came back to the highway he advanced, and turned off to the left.
And soon the same experience was repeated.

* * *

He met another Wayfarer.
Who stopped him and set him out on another road.
And that found him at last in a swamp.
And so he went from road to road and trail to trail until he was worn out.
And it was nightfall.

* * *

He took advice from everybody he met.
And they all set him out on different roads.
And after wandering about all day he was no farther on the way than at the morning.
And the voice within him said: "Why don't you go straight ahead on the highway?"

* * *

The next day he set out again.
Found the highway.
Went straight ahead.
Paid no heed to Critics and Advisers and Suggesters and Doubters and Cynics.
But listened to the voice within him that told him to go straight ahead.

* * *

And in the end he reached the City.
Learning that his own advice was better than that of Wayfarers who had never been anywhere.
Never done anything.
But who were willing to give advice on every subject under the sun.

SONGS OF THE POETS

The Arrow and the Song—Henry Wadsworth Longfellow (1807-1882)

I shot an arrow into the air,
It fell to earth, I know not where;
For, so swiftly it flew, the sight
Could not follow it in its flight.

I breathed a song into the air,
It fell to earth, I knew not where;
For who has sight so keen and strong,
That it can follow the flight of song?

Long, long afterward, in an oak
I found the arrow, still unbroke;
And the song, from beginning to end,
I found again in the heart of a friend.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

WILL AND KENESAW

[Cleveland Plain Dealer]

"Out of politics and public life forever," as he says, the former postmaster general looks up from behind the barricade of roses put on his desk by admiring friends to acknowledge greetings and declare his faith in movies and his own purposes to give them a larger share in the everyday thoughts of mankind. The movie, as Hays sees it, is to become our national "stabilizer"—a sort of gyroscope device to keep the social state on an even keel.

Someone dubs Hays the "Landis of the movies." As fair to say, perhaps, that Landis is the "Hays of baseball." Anyway, we have here the beginnings of an inspiring competition between screen and diamond for the credit of being America's paramount entertainment. One chief left the cabinet to direct a great enterprise to a greater destiny. The other chief quit the federal bench to give baseball a new punch.

Will and Kenesaw; both products of Indiana culture, political geniuses, as all good Hoosiers have been from the beginning of statehood; both of them fast on the bases and debonair under the spotlight, masters of publicity and leaders of men; one of them manager of the largest popular plurality ever achieved and the other the author of the largest fine ever decreed by a court, thinkers in big figures who believe that large accomplishments should be larger.

The movie is the principal entertainment of Americans. Baseball is the national sport, which is also an entertainment. Between the Indiana politician out of politics and the Indiana-bred judge off the bench we find it difficult to choose. Our bet is on both of them.

JUST BETWEEN OURSELVES

By DELLA STEWART

Wanting to fill the theater in Rome on the evening which was to witness his debut as a public singer, an Italian tenor hit upon this novel scheme. Remembering a woman's love of romance, he inserted the following notice in the evening papers of the city:

"Man of independent means and handsome appearance desires to marry attractive young woman. Dowry not necessary. He can be seen in one of the stage boxes at the Adriano theater on Saturday evening. Umberti Rota."

Women of all sorts and conditions crowded the office and the house was sold out to the doors, both to them and curious male escorts. All kept their eyes on the boxes, but as they remained empty of all strangers, they began to scan their programs, where they found that Signor Umberti Rota was a young singer there listed. But his strategy had won the desired result.

There is a hint here for particularly progressive Americans. Why allow another nationality to usurp such possibilities? Let the young doctor or lawyer who finds practice slow in coming flaunt matrimonial desires before the public. Let the merchant who desires to sell goods have as his drawing card a floor walker or undeniable pulchritude and well advertised desire for benedictine blessedness.

Undoubtedly the scheme would work as well as it did with Signor Rota. For we are all "sisters under the skin," whatever might be our nationality. And it might work fully as well, reversed, to apply to the onposite sex.

The idea is submitted at our usual price.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

This paragraph is written while memory of an incident witnessed Saturday evening is fresh in mind. It was an instance of carelessness and crime, of brutality and murder, and at that, no rare spectacle in the streets of a large city.

HENRY JAMES

At an outlying corner, where two carlines cross and there is a constant and heavy stream of travel of automobiles and pedestrians in four directions, the throng on this occasion was unusually great. Directly into the midst of it the driver of a Ford hurtled his machine. His speed was variously estimated by observers, but surely it was the utmost a Ford is capable of making.

A resident of the neighborhood, accompanied by his wife, was hastening to board a streetcar. The Ford struck him fairly, hurling him to the pavement. He was picked up with a ghastly wound in the head, and his leg broken in such cruel fashion that the splintered bone protruded. The driver did not pause for an instant. There were police on the corner, who dared not shoot at the assassin for fear of injuring others. They pursued in another machine, but were baffled by the countless number through which they had to force a way.

Soon the ambulance was on hand, and the victim taken to a hospital. Word came back to his friends that he had died shortly after.

Could the crowd have laid hands on the brute guiding the deadly Ford, he would never have driven thereafter. If apprehended later, his act should be regarded as that of cold-blooded murder.

Making a movie picture of the Los Angeles aqueduct was a fine piece of advertising. Other cities might take a lesson from it in order to spread information concerning their activities or their scenic charms.

Of course in this instance there was a suit to prevent the filming, on the ground that it cost money. The court dismissed the suit. There is expense in advertising, and almost everything worth while costs money.

Men in white robes kidnaped a citizen of San Bernardino who was paying a visit to his fiancee at the time. There has been no clear explanation of their purpose.

If the kidnapers were aware of the unworth of their victim, or knew there existed legal reasons why he should not be engaged to marry, and thought the matter any of their business, there were legal and decent methods of making the truth known.

Seldom are the sea given up a more poignantly sorrowful tale than that concerning the loss of a seaplane off the coast of Florida in which the five passengers perished. They had been journeying for pleasure. They were so circumstanced, each one, as to enjoy life to the utmost.

They appear to have been brave in the face of fate, to have endured to the utmost. Only the aviator of the group survived, and he in pitiful case.

The bonus bill got through the house by a larger majority than even its friends had expected.

Whatever is to be said for or against the measure, the argument that the country is going broke because of it, might as well be called in. Nobody believes it.

A Los Angeles woman had drawn up an agreement of marriage, and was urging the man in the case to sign it. The fact that he already had a wife did not seem to lessen her earnestness, which she was emphasizing with a pistol.

Just then the police broke in, being wishful of arresting the woman on other counts, whereupon she used the pistol to shoot herself effectively.

But probably the contract would not have stood in law anyhow.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

The old bear hunter got to talking in the smoker this evening. You know how it is with bear hunters. They are a good deal like the rest of us. When they get on their favorite topic they do not seem to know how to let go and give the other fellow a chance at his particular hobby.

"You cannot hunt bears with horses up in my New Mexico country," said he. "You have to hustle along afoot and try to keep up with the dogs. (If they get too far ahead of you they may get lost. Or they may corner the bear and tackle him all by themselves. In which case you lose a skilletful of dogs."

He said that a bear in good standing with his lodge can outrun a horse uphill and make a good nag sprint on the level. It is only down hill that the game is at a disadvantage, and there being more uphills than there are downhills in New Mexico he naturally picks out the track he likes best.

"Many a time," said the old hunter, "I've just naturally thought I'd die pumping along that away with a heavy gun on my shoulder, through brush and up hills."

One of the other passengers had been listening open-mouthed. He said he didn't know how any one could consider that sort of hard work a sport.

"Whatever do you do when you get that way?" he asked.

"Well," said the old bear hunter, "I always figure that I might just as well die on the next hillside as on the one that I was on. Then, by and by, I'd get my second wind."

Strikes me there is a lot of sound philosohy in that idea. It was on the theory that the dying was just as good on the next hill that kept little Finklestein's store open in our town, long after we had all decided that he didn't have a chance to survive commerciaily. It was only the other day that Finkie endowed a bed in our local hospital. And it was that next hill thought that kept Doc Harris fighting for his oldest daughter's life when the other doctors who had been called in had given her up.

There's one thing sure, the old bear hunter said. If you keep on going you either die OR you get your second wind.

DO YOU KNOW THAT?

A speed of 312 miles an hour is the remarkable claim for the Hansch helicopter, of which the British air ministry has received news through unofficial circles.

In England there is a distinct movement toward the use of ready-prepared dishes, which helps the canned-goods trade. This movement is due to the difficulty of securing domestic help and the high wages demanded. In France, however, where help is more abundant and where cooking is carried to a state of artistic perfection ready-cooked foods are little used.

Alcohol is extensively used by taxicabs of Havana for fuel.

ALASKA FARMER GROWS PEST CROP OF WIND

Blows Garden Truck to Sea or Smears It All Over Coast

PORTLAND, Ore., March 28, (United Press.)—John J. Commuter can sympathize with Charles P. Mercer, the man from Unimak pass, in regard to the difficulties attendant upon raising garden truck.

Your commuter finds his crops devoured by bugs and the neighbor's chickens. Trade winds blow Mercer's truck stuff out to sea, or spread it over the coast of Alaska.

Mercer is here for his annual vacation, while his lighthouse and fog station at Cape Sarichef, Alaska, is closed during the season of closed navigation.

"No, we don't worry much about woman suffrage, the modern styles, or jazz, or any of the other things that Chicago feature writers get gray hairs about every week or so, up there at Cape Sarichef," declared Mercer.

"You see, the government won't alow women folks in the lighthouses, and then, too, I'm not married. We're seldom bothered with things of that sort. The mail comes only once a month, when the weather is nice, so we're not in direct touch all the time. One has to keep in constant touch, you know, with such absorbing changes as jazz and flapper parties to appreciate them. The only flappers we have are in the schools of whales."

Mercer reported that the island where his lighthouse stands is heavily stocked with caribou, many of which died this year from starvation. The government permits the killing of the animals for food, but prohibits their molestation for gain. Red foxes abound on the island, and are tame enough to pose for photographs.

POOR RELATION AT THE GLENDALE

The romance of Wallace McDonald, who plays the juvenile lead in the Goldwyn picture, "A Poor Relation," starring Will Rogers, and Doris May, famous screen comedienne, was brought to completion when the young couple were married in Los Angeles while the picture was being produced.

Two days before the marriage Mr. MacDonald said:

"This is the marriage license. It's a funny thing! I just got the license to marry Doris May and now I come out here and propose—an hour later—to Sylvia Breamer!" He laughed. "I think both my choices are good!"

Miss Breamer is leading woman in the film, "A Poor Relation," which comes to the Glendale theatre Wednesday and Thursday.

TAYLOR'S TAMALE FACTORY HERE

Mr. Arthur Taylor, owner and general manager of Taylor's Tamale factory, which is located on San Fernando road between the twin cities, last week bought one of Nathan Rigdon's bungalows on North Maryland. This beautiful bungalow is of hollow tile veneer, with basement and gas furnace, and exceptionally pleasing in design, which is also typical of so many of Glendale's homes. Transaction was handled through the firm of Harper & Craig.

RIALTO STOCK TO GIVE BEACH PLAY

"The Barrier," Romance of Northwest Be Staged at Tent Theatre

Tonight the Rialto Stock company at the Tent theatre will present Rex Beach's romantic stage story of the Northwest, "The Barrier," and those who have read the book need not be told that it is one of the most delightful depictive characterizations from that famous writer's pen.

The spoken drama, unlike the picture of "The Barrier," leaves nothing to the imagination, but in plainly spoken words by types consistent with those Mr. Beach created, hold in a thrilling way the interest of the auditor.

Tonight new vaudeville numbers as well as orchestral music will be provided, which is done with each change of play.

"The Barrier" will be followed Friday with "The Hottentot."

The Tent theatre is most comfortably heated by a battery of eight coke stoves, and Manager Babcock sees that every possible convenience is provided patrons.

"Some show!" "You bet!" "It sure was great!" With these and a few others, the crowd of 30 Glendale Press carriers filed out of the big tent and into the storm last night. But what cared these tow-headed, red-headed, black-headed, freckle-faced, red-faced, fair-faced ,clear-voiced, shrill-voiced, husky-voiced roughnecks for a few drops of rain. They had just witnessed "some show" and it would take more than a few drops of rain to dampen their enthusiasm and hilarity. Thirty seconds after the crowd had emerged from the tent there was not a youngster to be seen. Fifteen minutes later most of them were safely tucked away beneath a half-dozen big, fluffy blankets, and five minutes after that the darling little chaps were dreaming the show all over again.

These 30 Press carriers were guests last night of the Rialto Stock company, whose big tent is located at the corner of Orange and Harvard streets. The boys gathered at the Glendale Press office and went in a body to the big tent. What they thought of the show was evidenced by their bursts of applause. Not a detail of the show was lost to these youngsters, not even the rough-and-ready fight which furnished a rattling good ending for the plot.

The Press carriers who attended were Harold Begg, Porter Thompson, Kirman Herman, Bryant Small, Charlie Tummel, Ronald Harris. Billy Halstead, Ralph Gillman, Charlie Smith, Roy Kneffler, Harry Smith, Donald Elliott, Edgar Kneffler, Ford Marshall, Walter Smith, Lawrence May, Kenneth Wessen, Earl Smith, Howard Scott, William LaFountain, John Elliott, Joseph Dimitt, Horace Anderson, Homer Lockwood, Ray Gene Doll, Billie Pheland, Ernest Ogilvie, John Ide and Bert Ball.

This is a dramatic story of the sea, with scenes along the coast or Norway, in Magdalena bay, Mexico, and along the waterfront of San Francisco.

Dorothy Dalton was excellent in the role of Moran, while Mr. Valentino gave a powerful portrayal of Ramon. The support generally was of the best.

This is real romance and found great approval with the audiences at the T. D. & L. last night. The picture will be shown tomorrow night for the last times.

A. O. MARTIN OPENS DETECTIVE AGCY. IN GLENDALE

Former Chief of Police Returns to Special Investigations

The return of A. O. Martin, formerly chief of police of Glendale and Pasadena to his special work, private investigations and detective detail is announced today by Mr. Martin.

For the present, his work will be conducted out of his home, 640 West Lexington Drive, phone Glen. 1061-J.

The announcement should be of particular interest to those persons and interests in and about Glendale and in the cities of the coast as well as in the east, in that it places at their service a man whose excellent record for integrity and efficiency has never been creditably affected by any charges in the various or long career of positions he has held.

Those who have matters of a confidential nature to intrust to the discrete investigation of Mr. Martin can be assured that such investigations terminate with the expiration of his services, a thing which does not always occur in the work of some, so-called private detective operations.

Mr. Martin has behind him a long record of service. First, in the United States secret service; then as special agent of the department of justice, and as special agent of the department of commerce and labor.

Later he was chief investigator for the Wells agency in Chicago, chief house detective for the Hotel LaSalle, Chicago, then he opened his own office, the agency of A. O. Martin & Co., in Chicago.

He later became chief of police in Pasadena, then in Glendale. In the work of his own agency, he handled collections, along with espionage.

Mr. Martin is qualified peculiarly to enter into many environments and is at home in many. He has been a railroad man, he is an expert accountant and has considerable experience as credit man.

Throughout his career he has always played the game fair and square.

MATTHEWS SWEET SHOP OPENING

The Matthews Confectionery, 127 West Broadway, will hold its opening on Saturday, April 1st. Mr. J. P. Matthews, proprietor of this establishment, comes to Glendale with the finest kind of a candy making record behind him. He has been making candy for the past thirty-five years and knows the business from one end to the other. During his years in the candy business he has gathered thousands of recipes, and it is the finest of these that he has selected to offer to the Glendale public.

During Mr. Matthews candy-making career he has operated stores in Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle and Vancouver, from which ploce he comes direct to Glendale. The firm will open Saturday with a force of ten people, and will be increased just as rapidly as is demanded.

"We will manufacture all of our candies and ice cream. We know the candy-making business and use modern machinery of all kinds. In all of our output nothing but the finest, best and freshest in materials are used. We buy so far as possible from local concerns and will employ only local help.

THE GOSSIP MOTHER NATURE MADE

By JOHN BARTON

(Copyright, 1921, by Associated Newspapers)

"Why did Ham make Mister Noah go to visit the beast who had been gossiping about the raven?" The red dog repeated Dr. Muskrat's question. "Because seeing is believing.

"He wouldn't believe a word of the awful things that bird used to whisper to his wicked wife. Because he couldn't see how any one aboard his ark could possibly overhear them. (He'd tried it himself.) Neither could the raven. Because he'd picked out their special perch for that very reason. The wall of Shem's cabin was on one side of him and the vulture, who was deaf as a post, was on the other. A great pile of liferafts were stacked above him, while below was a big sea bird as dumb as the fish he used to live on.

"But Ham led the way to the lower deck where the beasts were living. He knocked at a door; some one sniffed loudly at him. 'Yas'm,' he chuckled, 'Hit's des yo' ol' frien,' Ham. I brung de Cap'n. He come to pay hes respec's an' ax how is you sagatiatin'?' Then he opened the door and they stepped inside. Mister Noah took one look—and then he saw; it was the lady giraffe he was calling on."

"Giraffe?" echoed the Woodsfolk, their eyes wide.

"Giraffe," the red dog repeated. "And a queer beast she was—queer as her name. She came from Africa, you know, where they grow them. I've heard say Mother Nature took the leavings from the cows and put them together just to see what she could make with them. Anyway, her forelegs were much too long and her hind ones much too short, and her tail too tiny for either of them. Her hide was just scraps from the lion's overcoat, patched together any shape they came. And her head might have been a deer's, spoilt in the making, with its horns broken off in two little stubby ends. Oh, but she was foolish looking.

"But that wasn't what caught

"It was the lady giraffe he was calling on."

Mister Noah's eye; she had a neck 'most five feet long! For Mother Nature not only made her of leavings ,she made her to live off them—the green feed so high up in the African trees nobody else could reach it. She was so pindling tall and slim and slanty-looking if she stood up in her stall she'd get a crick in that neck from hanging her head down. Unless—unless she stuck it out of the window. And if she did that she could reach up past the sea-bird's cage and lay her ear right against the raven's.

"Oh, she could hear him all right enough. More than that, her droopy upper lip and her long pointy tongue were just made for telling what she heard. Now, what Mister Noah wanted to know was this: if she only spoke African how could she understand him? That was the next thing he had to ask Ham."

MODESTO PLANT TO OPEN FACTORY IN GLENDALE

Power Implement and Machine Works to Erect Plant Here

Announcement was made at the weekly meeting and luncheon of the chamber of commerce board of directors that the Power Implement and Machine Works, formerly of Modesto, Cal., have leased property and let the contract for the erection of a plant in Glendale that will cost approximately $38,000. The new plant will be located at the intersection of Glendale boulevard and San Fernando road.

"If a banana costs 3 cents," said the teacher, "what will a dozen cost?"

Willie hesitated, then gave it up.

"Well, do you suppose you could do the sum if we were to play at keeping store?"

Willie thought that he could and consented to enter the make-believe market and address the storekeeper:

"Have you got any good bananas today?"

"Some fine ones at 3 cents cents apiece," was the reply.

"I'll take a dozen, if you please," said Willie, digging into his pocket for imaginary cash. "And how much'll that be?"

Habits may be good as well as bad. Because we hear more of "bad" habits we often forget the good ones.

Systematic saving is a good habit. It serves to overcome waste and extravagance and has been at the basis of nearly every big fortune.

The best way of acquiring it is through a Savings Account, added to regularly each week or month. Soon it becomes just as easy and natural to deposit a certain amount in the Bank as it was before to spend it for first one trifle and then another.

The important thing is to make the start—and even that is easy with one of our little Home Banks which we loan free with each account of $1.00 or more.

The cornet solo will be played by one stationed back in the hills and will be something of the nature of a bugle call intermingled with strains of Easter music. The Choral club will lead in all the hymns and also render the Hallelujah Chorus from the Messiah.

The service will be conducted at the cross stationed at the head of Olive avenue near the Sunset canyon country club house, just at the base of the hills.

BURBANK C. OF C. TO ADOPT LAWS WEDNESDAY

Mass Meeting Called in Grammar School to Pass on Regulations

Wednesday night there will be a mass meeting in the auditorium of the grammar school under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce when some business which could not be finished at the last meeting of the board of directors will be placed before the entire membership and also some new matters will be taken up.

At the directors' meeting a constitution and by-laws was read and approved but they must be adopted by a vote of the membership and therefore they will be considered at the Wednesday night meeting. Any and all are invited to the meeting and an opportunity will be given for any person to speak on any matter of civic importance at this time. The high school orchestra under the direction of Professor White will assist in entertaining the audience.

One of the matters of importance which the directors took action upon was the creating of fee of $10 per year for non-business and non-professional members. Also a five year membership with a value of one hundred dollars was set aside for the member or other person who should secure the greatest number of members during the drive which has just been opened. Also a cash prize of $25 will be given by Secretary Colburn. The time limit for this drive has not been determined but probably will be at the meeting Wednesday night.

MRS. EDNA DUNLOP IS HONORED BY HER HOSTESS

Mrs. Edna Dunlop, guest of Mrs. E. Herrman of Angeleno avenue, was honored by her hostess with a bridge luncheon today, when four tables of guests sat down to the pleasing refreshments. The place cards were suggestive of Easter. The rooms were made beautiful with the graceful acacia. A number of guests were present from Los Angeles and Long Beach.

On Saturday evening at 6:30, Mrs. Herrman will again open her house to eight couples of Burbank friends, who will gather about the festive board and partake of a Spanish dinner. There will be real chili con carne and tamale loaf and other Spanish dishes. Following the dinner five hundred will be played.

ADVENTISTS ENTER RE-MODELLED CHURCH

Members Gratified With Appearance of Newly Furnished Home

On Saturday the Seventh-day Adventist congregation occupied their church for the first time since its remodeling and refurnishing and it was like entering an entirely new building.

W. M. Adams, president of the conference and a resident of Eagle Rock, attended the services, and there was ordained as elder, Mr. Sanford, and as deacon, Mr. Tressider, and Mr. Morton of Glendale. In about two weeks there will be a formal opening meeting with special services, at which time an effort will be made to clear off the small debt in order that the church may be dedicated, as it is one of the principles of the denomination to never dedicate a building on which anything remains to be paid.

Evangelist Prout, who has been in charge of the congregation and of the process of building, will now give place to Professor H. G. Lucas, who is superintendent of parochial schools in the conference. Mr. Prout has much to do with building measures in the district, and in speaking of this work he said that after the church was dedicated, if the members thought best, steps would be taken toward the erection of a parochial school in Burbank. He also said that at the conference recently held in Los Angeles and to which he was a delegate, it was decided to build an academy somewhere in this district, and as the southern end was by far the largest in point of membership, it was thought best to locate it in this section. A number of cities are anxious to secure it.

The church, as it now stands, has a large entrance with inner and outer doors finished in dark tones. On each side of the vestibule are small class rooms which open into the vestibule and also into the main room. Along a portion of the north side of the auditorium is another class room but much larger, which connects with the big room by sliding doors. At the end of the main room are two small ante-rooms between which is a narrow hallway. These are accessible from the main room and the large class room. New windows are in the building and new floors are laid. The new chairs are finished in a pleasing gray. The ceiling lights, which are a gift from a Pasadena friend, have not been finished, but it is said they will be especially beautiful. A piano is another new feature for the congregation to enjoy. The grounds about the church will soon be beautified with a lawn.

METHODIST WOMEN MISSIONARY UNIT HOLDS MEETING

Burbank Society Celebrate Founders Day at Burbank Church

An all day meeting was held Thursday at the Methodist church under the auspices of the Woman's Missionary society which was a joint observance of the Day of Prayer and Founders' Day—founders of the Woman's Foreign Missionary society of the Methodist church, but this meeting was not confined to the Methodist church for there were present representatives of other churches, Mrs. L. G. Parker of the Christian church who talked on the subject of missions in Europe; Mrs. Winger who came as a representative of the Presbyterian church and discussed missions in Japan, and Mrs. Bradshaw, a Baptist who has been a missionary in China and talked very interestingly of work there. Mrs. Allen of the Methodist church spoke on frontier work in America.

Mrs. Hoskyns, a prominent missionary worker in the First Methodist church of Glendale, was present and gave an excellent talk on how the churches could best accomplish their missionary work and stated that it was by the education of the young people, not only of this country but of the countries in which the missionaries were working, and she gave considerable interesting information regarding the union colleges in the foreign lands.

A picnic dinner was spread with the women of the Methodist church serving the coffee.

METHODISTS OF BURBANK GO TO AZUSA

Seven Auto Loads Attend Evangelistic Service to Hear Connor Trio

Friday night seven automobile loads of members of the Methodist congregation went to Azusa to attend the evangelistic services being conducted there, and to hear again the Conner Trio, who went from here to that city. Rev. and Mrs. Allen made up part of the number who took the trip. Azusa was the place of the first charge Rev. Allen had when he came to California nine years ago, and it was a pleasure to again greet old friends and a pleasure to the friends to welcome their former pastor and wife.

L. A. MAN ENTERS GLENDALE BACK OF CHEVROLET CAR

C. L. Smith Buys Agency and Begins Aggressive Campaign for Friends

C. L. Smith, a newcomer to Glendale, has purchased the Glendale Chevrolet agency from the firm of Fish & Tarr, which has been the agent for this car in Glendale for the past several years. For 16 years Mr. Smith was in business on Olive street in Los Angeles, where his efforts were marked with unusual success. He has long had his eye on Glendale and in finally locating here, he says he has come here to boost Glendale as emphatically as he is able.

Within a short time Mr. Smith expects to begin the construction of a $30,000 building at the corner of Colorado and Orange, into which he will move just as soon as it is completed. The present location at 400 East Broadway, which is only temporary, will be retained by this firm until the new building is finished. Plans for the new building are now being drawn and as soon as these are available construction of the new building will be started. It will be rushed to completion. Every feature in connection with the automobile business will be taken care of in planning the new building, from the sales department down to the repair section.

E. F. Tellar of Los Angeles has been placed in charge of the sales force of this concern. Mr. Tellar has had many years' experience in the sales end of automobile concerns of Los Angeles and is especially familiar with the Chevrolet car, this assuring the people of Glendale the very finest of service along this line.

Mr. Smith has moved to Glendale and is now looking for a home that meets his requirements and tastes. He is a sportsman of no little note. When it comes to casting a trout fly he is "right there," and is a past master in every branch of the angling game. He expects during the fishing season that is approaching to make a number of extended trips into the wilds of California's back country. He says he has a whole "flock" of trout staked out, and that he is fattening them up for the opening day of the season.

"I have seen every section of Southern California," said Mr. Smith this morning, "and out of the whole works I have selected Glendale. This isn't hot air, and to show you that I am sincere I am going to be one of the most active boosters for this section in Glendale. I like the business outlook here. Every one seems to be on the jump, and that means good business. Just watch the Chevrolet agency grow."

BRAVE POLICEMAN IS NOW FOUND

OAKLAND, March 28, (United Press.)—Page the Carnegie Foundation! The bravest policeman has undoubtedly been found.

He is traffic officer W. H. Garratt. He pinched his own wife for "cutting the corner" on which he was stationed.

Not only that, but he didn't tear up her card. He turned her in, and she had to appear in police court.

She pleaded guilty, although she undoubtedly could have gone free through a legal technicality: It is against the law for a husband to testify against his wife, or vice versa.

Mrs. Garratt admitted having "cut the corner" because she didn't think "the policeman" was there. He was standing on the curb instead of in the center of the street, however.

Judge E. J. Tyrell proved a man of discretion. He suspended judgment. He was afraid a bitter family dispute might be the outcome of a fine, the question being, was the husband to blame for the loss of the money through arresting the wife, or was the wife to blame for cutting the corner? Any married man can readily see that the argument could never be settled.

DR. VON KLEINSMID TO BE INSTALLED APRIL 27

Ceremony to Be Marked by Representatives of Educational Forces

Los Angeles will become the center of interest during the coming inauguration of Dr. Rufus Bernhard von KleinSmid, to be held on April 27, 28, and 29.

Mr. John B. Miller, formerly a student at the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor, has been appointed the official representative of the university. Mr. Miller is one of the most prominent business men of Southern California. He is president of the Southern California Edison Company, director of the First National Bank of Los Angeles, and of the Pacific Mutual Life Insurance company.

Columbia University, New York City, which is also a metropolitan institution such as the University of California, has appointed Dr. W. J. Barlow, the well-known Los Angeles physician, as its delegate to the president's inauguration. Dr. Barlow graduated from Columbia in 1892 and has become one of the most distinguished authorities in medical circles in the United States, besides being well known for his philanthropic work.

The Los Angeles Ebell club, one of the largest women's clubs in the city, will send Mrs. Charles H. Toll, its president, as their delegate. This club is typical of the civic clubs formed throughout the cities of the United States. The women that are members are thoroughly alive and interested in the problems of the day. They have special departments for women interested in art, literature or science, language and social service work. In the department of science and language there is a parliamentary section. In this section needed laws are discussed to take the place of laws grown out of date, or to meet a new situation in the complete scheme of modern life.

The "Wildcat" University of Arizona has chosen one of their noted faculty men to represent them at the installation of Dr. von KleinSmid, Dr. F. C. Lockwood, who has assumed the position of acting president. Dr. Lockwood is known in Arizona because of his position as director of the university extension and as the author of several books in English and Philosophy. He is widely known as a lecturer and will probably be one of the speakers at the inaugural ceremonies. Judge John H. Campbell, who is a member of the board of regents of the University of Arizona, will represent the regents of that institution at the inauguration. Judge Campbell has been one of the leading citizens of Arizona and is also one of the foremost members at the bar. He is well known in legal circles throughout the coast states.

Acting Secretary of State Fletcher, who is holding the position during the absence of Secretary Hughes in the West Indies, again assured the University of the interest of the state department in the Pan-American conference. He is instructing the official representatives of the universities abroad to urge upon the governments the necessity of being represented officially at the Pan-American conference held during the time of the inauguration of Dr. von KleinSmid.

Dr. David S. Hill, president of the University of New Mexico, who is a personal friend of Dr. von KleinSmid, has accepted an invitation to be present. Dr. Hill is known throughout the southwest as one of its leading educators. He is also the author of several books on industrial training, and is an advocate for higher business training for business and educational men.

NAVAJO INDIAN MISSIONARY IS HERE

Rev. W. R. Johnston from Arizona Is at Christian Alliance

Rev. W. R. Johnston, a missionary to the Navajo Indians in Arizona, filled the pulpit of the Christian and Missionary Alliance church on East Chestnut street last Sunday night. He talked on the subject, "God's Dealings and Purposes, and the Way He Works With Them Who Have Given Their Life to His Work."

Rev. Johnston has been a missionary to the Navajoes for 25 years, and gave a brief resume of how he was sent to the Indians in 1896 instead of being sent to Africa, where he wished to go. He stated in part that when he and his wife and their young son arrived in Flagstaff they were 90 miles from their station and had just $8. Here he quoted Mark 13:14, "And He sendeth forth two of His disciples and saith unto them, Go ye into the city and there shall meet you a man bearing a pitcher of water; follow him."

"I found the man with the pitcher, an Indian trader who offered to take us into the Indian country," Mr. Johnston stated. "We were glad to accept and in the course of time we were set down in an outlying village."

Here they hired a buckboard and guide who promised to show up early the next day, but after waiting until after noon for him they started without him. The trail gradually disappeared and they were lost. Here they met the "man with the pitcher" again, an Indian, who showed them the trail and disappeared. After arriving at the village and securing quarters, immediately young and old, dirty, filthy and unkempt, with all kinds of ills, were brought to them, and while his wife was digging her way through the filth on the bodies of the little ones she was also finding her way into the hearts of their mothers.

Rev. Johnstone stated that the nomadic tribes were increasing in number rather than decreasing, although he stated that the Indians who lived in the thickly settled districts were probably decreasing.

He described a talk with one of the medicine men during one of his meetings, after he had been among them some years and had learned the language. This man asked if Jesus Christ was not the English name for their god. This meeting broke up discouragingly, but before morning this man settled for himself whether he would follow Christ or their god.

"Let us keep praying for the missionaries," Rev. Johnston urged. "They have difficulties and troubles we know nothing of."

After being with the Indians some years a mother gave them her little girl and made them promise two things: that they would teach her of Jesus as they did their little Mary, who was born in the Indian country, and to shield her from the white man. He came home one night and saw kneeling at the bedside two little white-clad forms. From the edge of one nightrobe stuck two little white feet; from the edge of the other, two little red ones, and these two girls grew up, loving one another as sisters.

After one of his meetings old Tomas, a bad Indian, gave testimony how he had been a gambler, thief and drunkard, but had heard the missionary tell about the "straight and narrow trail," and Tomas was now following it. Rev. Johnston stated he was among the Indians 11 years before having a convert.

During the influenza epidemic an Indian girl who had received training from them and then went home, was brought back to them with pneumonia after the medicine man had tried all his curses. She was unutterably dirty, but was cleaned up and put in the hospital, where for four days she fought against death. Just before going she said: "I am not afraid to go through the valley with Jesus," and with one hand in theirs and the other holding to Jesus Christ, she passed through the valley.

You cannot conquer any weakness by coddling it.

MANY CASES OF RHEUMATISM NOW

Says We Must Keep Feet Dry, Avoid Exposure and Eat Less Meat.

Stay off the damp ground, avoid exposure, keep feet dry, eat less meat, drink lots of water and above all take a spoonful of salts occasionally to keep down uric acid.

Rheumatism is caused by poisonous toxin, called uric acid, which is generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine. The pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly, cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work, they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles, causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism.—Adv.

FEDERAL FARMER LOANS TO CLOSE ON JULY 1

Los Angeles Agricultural Agency Prepared to Act on Application

Through an announcement made today notice is given to all who may qualify for a loan from the War Finance Corporation that, according to the terms of the law creating the corporation, no money can be advanced by this organization after July 1, 1922, and that if banks or cooperative marketing associations hope to secure credit through this Federal emergency agency, they must act promptly. There is, of course, at the present time a discussion of extending the time beyond July 1, 1922, but as it requires the action of congress, which may not finally be obtained, it will be unwise to delay.

The purpose of congress in passing the act by which credit is being extended to agriculturaists and livestock men through the war finance corporation, was to afford much needed financial assistance to these producers during the period of re-adjustment. Owing to the speed with which this aid had to be extended, the bank of the country were selected as the most suitable existing agencies through which the corporation might act. Accordingly, applications for loans must be made through a bank, banker, live stock loan company, trust company or associations of growers that hold produce for marketing.

Loans to individual growers are not made directly by the war finance corporation for the reason that such would require the building up of a large organization with a great expense and would delay just so much the distribution of the emergency credit that the corporation is now extending.

Remarkable good has been accomplished by the war finance corporation since it commenced to loan money in October of 1921 for agricultural purposes. The research department of the First National Bank of Los Angeles and the Los Angeles Trust & Savings Bank, reports that information which they have obtained, shows that in the United States $187,500,000 has been loaned for agricultural purposes by the corporation.

The number of farmers who have been helped by these advances is very great. There have been 5200 advances made already but this does not indicate the number of persons who have been assisted since a number of farmers may be included in one advance. In the corn belt, for instance, one advance involved some 174 farmers.

The total amount of money loaned through the agricultural loan agency in Los Angeles—the agency of the war finance corporation—is in the neighborhood of $5,000,000. There are 33 such agencies in the United States. The Los Angeles agency covers only the territory south of Fresno county in California and the state of Arizona with the exception of two counties, Apache and Navajo.

The Los Angeles Agricultural Loan Agency is not limited as to amount of money it may recommend to be loaned on any one security, and will receive applications, however, for any money can be made after [illegible] 1922.

The procedure in making application [illegible] has been made convenient as possible. The banker, [illegible] made to certain [illegible] loans for agricultural purposes—that is, [illegible] connected with the harvesting, [illegible] and marketing [illegible] from the [illegible] an advance [illegible] putting up [illegible] other paper [illegible] mit which [illegible] Association [illegible] produce in [illegible] possession [illegible] marketing [illegible] from the corporation [illegible] upon a basis similar to the [illegible] to banks.

The money loaned [illegible] for various periods of time, [illegible] the one year. The [illegible] concern making [illegible] allowed for its expenses [illegible] anty of the paper a margin [illegible] cent in excess of the rate of interest charged by the corporation at the time the loan is made.

Application forms may be obtained by banks and loan concerns from any federal reserve bank or branch bank, from the war finance corporation, Washington, D. C., or from the Los Angeles Agricultural Loan Agency of the War Finance Corporation, the headquarters of which are in the Pacific Electric building in charge of DeWitt Knox, room 390, while applications to be made by cooperative marketing associations are to be obtained from war finance corporation direct.

It is frequently reported that the improvement in the last few months in general conditions has been because of the loaning of money to agriculturalists and live stock men who were thus able to hold their crops—and were saved from sacrificing their produce upon a market that was glutted because of the pressure that creditors were bringing upon the farmers. The prices of agricultural products have been steadied and more reasonable returns secured for those products which would have otherwise sold below cost of production.

Eugene Meyer, Jr., managing director of the war finance corporation, who has been making a tour of the country, looking into the work of the various local agencies, will arrive in Los Angeles about the first of April to go over the work of the Los Angeles agency.

TUJUNGA WATER USERS HOLD A MASS MEETING

Pro and Con of Water Rate Question Discussed Last Night

TUJUNGA, March 29. — With protests from water users and justification of proposed rate increases by officials of the Haines Canyon Water company constituting the principal speeches, a large mass meeting of Tujunga water users was held at Bolton hall last night.

President Breidt of the Tujunga chamber of commerce called the meeting to order and explained that it had been called by the chamber of commerce to discuss the proposed rate increase. Mr. Breidt was elected permanent chairman of the meeting and Mr. Berkson secretary.

After a short introductory talk in which he said that the rate hearing is to be held before the state railroad commission at Tujunga on April 24, the chairman opened the meeting for discussion.

Mr. Knox opened discussion with a motion to have a copy of the water company's petition to the railroad commission, as held by Everett Carlson, chairman of the chamber of commerce committee on water, read and placed on record.

Mr. Carlson read the document, which states that present rates are too low to insure a firm financial basis for the company and prays that the railroad commission hold a public hearing and adjust the rates. It is stated in the petition that the company has insufficient funds to pay interest on its indebtedness and cannot hope to raise money to pay for further increase in service with rates as they are at the present time. The value of the investment in the system is given as $160,000; $20,978.70 is quoted as the expense for last year, with a revenue of $17,113.96, leaving a deficit of $3,864.74, not including depreciation or interest. The petition is signed by Harry B. Lynch, president of the Haines Canyon Water company, and by Albert B. Pierce, attorney for the company.

In commenting on the figures given, Mr. Carlson estimated that to make up to deficit, pay the interest and yield 8 per cent profit on the investment would mean practically the doubling of the present rates. He asked Mr. Lynch, president of the company, to make a statement in regard to the figures given.

Mr. Lynch in reply stated that he felt that he could add nothing to the petition and was present as a consumer and listener.

Mr. Adam, in a review of water difficulties since the colony was first organized, stated that the water rates had been raised several times and alleged that the small consumer was always the one to pay. He referred to the passing of a resolution to the railroad commission requesting that charges for non-resident service be abolished.

Mr. Knox deplored the using of the word "fight" in connection with the present rate dispute and plead for an understanding of the [illegible] on a fair and equitable basis. [illegible] requested that a committee [illegible] organization of water users [illegible] to represent the consumers at the hearing.

[illegible] Hartranft, president of [illegible] Home Extension [illegible] talk of some length [illegible] present rates of [illegible] per meter and [illegible] 500 feet of [illegible] inadequate, and [illegible] in nearby towns, [illegible] minimum charge is $2. [illegible] Home Extension [illegible] originally put a lien [illegible] per acre against [illegible] by them, and that [illegible] had later been cut [illegible] the constitutional amendment [illegible] deprived of this revenue, [illegible] company was forced to raise [illegible] in some other way, and [illegible] ferred to the railroad commission. He believes that an error [illegible] was made in granting the increase [illegible] and places the burden of new meter installations upon other water users. The cost of meter reading, bookkeeping and clerical work must all be considered in examining the charges, he said.

D. A. Johnson stated that it was his belief that the land company reaped the benefit of increased land valuation, made possible through water, and asked why this should not be in part charged off against the alleged losses of the water company. He said that the cost of the meter would soon be repaid through the 50 cents per month meter charge, and that the water company still owned the meter. He expressed a fear that many home owners would be forced by excessive water rates to let vegetation die and leave the community. In referring to a statement of the company that 5 per cent of its users pay only 50 cents a month, he asked knowledge of the ones referred to. It was later brought out that this 50 cents per month referred to meter charge.

Mr. Hartranft in answer, stated that the Home Extension company, of which he is the sole owner, and the Haines Canyon Water company are two separate and distinct corporations, and that losses in one could not in fairness be made up through gains in the other.

Mr. Ferguson stated that he owned land in the northeast part of the community and could not be supplied with water. He asked for an explanation.

Mr. Hartranft stated that the territory in which he owned land was in the Haines canyon zone, and that more users could not be accommodated from the canyon's gravity flow on account of lack of sufficient water. He said that the company could not in fairness take in more consumers and thus place the water supply of previous clients in danger, and referred to a time when the railroad commission had ordered this done, with a subsequent lack of water.

In answer to a question from Mr. Johnson as to whether water could not as easily be pumped to the Haines canyon zone as to the Talamantes subdivision, recently opened, Mr. Hartranft stated that the latter tract was almost on a level with the Pine street reservoir and was served by gravity flow.

Mr. Zitto recalled efforts to have water served to him and favored a fund to represent consumers at the hearing.

Mr. Lynch, in answer to a question from Mr. Knox as to whether petitions to the railroad commission were not usually more specific in their request for rate increases, stated that the petitions were framed in general terms that the commission might fix rates in accordance with its findings.

Mr. Knox, in order to have a definite organization to collect funds for representation at the commission's hearing, moved the appointment of a committee with Mr. Carlson as chairman, to solicit funds. This motion carried and Mr. Carlson appointed Johnson, Berkson and Knox to collect funds and give receipts.

The meeting was adjourned with a statement that a second mass meeting will be held on Thursday, April 6.

Foley's Friendly Fancies

JAMES W. FOLEY

AIRCASTLETOWN

A truce to thy struggling, poor mortal who strives;
A rest to thy efforts poor, hungering soul;
Come, Need, cast away all thy harrowing gyves,
And Sorrow, I'll take thee where dreams are made whole.
Here in the dim twilight we'll sit by and dream;
Our fancies stray far as the light thistledown,
For, red as the sunrise, the golden rays gleam
Over there on the hilltops, near Aircastletown.

Ah, light as the leaf on the wandering breeze
We'll float in our dreams from these sorrows away;
Where fruit of fulfillment is ripe on the trees
And sunlight of hope never dims night or day.
So here at the twilight we'll float with the tide
Of ungoverned fancy, nor borrow a frown
From the face of tomorrow, but carelessly glide
Down the stream of our dreamings to Aircastletown.

My cottage a palace, my palace a King's,
All peopled with dreams by some magic come true;
My wicket a drawbridge that never once swings
At the summons of Care—and, ah, best of all, You!
A fig for the cares that beset me the day,
The smile of fulfillment swift conquers my frown,
For the sails of my dreams to the winds dip away
And I'm off for a journey to Aircastletown.

What seek me? Some treasure by Caprice denied?
What would ye? Some toy Fate might find thee with ease?
What ask ye? Some fair wind and flood of the tide.
To bring home thy argosy, far on the seas?
Then truce to thy dreamings—come journey with me,
On wings fine and airy as light thistledown,
And here at the twilight come sit, dream, and see
Thy longings come true there in Aircastletown.

A Year Ago Today

(From the Glendale Daily Press of March 29, 1921)

Members of the Tuesday Afternoon club today decided to reuest the trustees to compile information regarding the formation of a stock corporation and to consider plans to build a new clubhouse for the organization.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Robinson of 212 West Colorado street entertained about 30 of their friends on Thursday night at an old-fashioned candy pull. Several musical numbers and comical readings were the features of the evening, in addition to making candy.

The local committee which has undertaken to furnish the kitchen for the Monte Vista home for orphans met yesterday and decided that a tag day to provide funds for the work should be held. Next Thursday was the date chosen for the event.

Invitations have been sent out to all of the aero clubs along the Pacific coast and to all aviation fields to aviators and their ladies to attend an aviation luncheon at the private clubhouse of the L. C. Brand estate. Mr. Brand, who is an enthusiastic aviator himself, will be host at the affair. Admittance can be gained only in airplanes and other flying machines.

SACRAMENTO, March 29.—Articles of incorporation of the Union Oil association, the newly formed holding company for stock in the Union Oil company of California, have been filed with the secretary of state at Sacramento. The company is capitalized for $30,000,000. Los Angeles will be its headquarters.
